Streaming Audio

A lot of you have asked for it and now it's here, the ability to listen to some complete tracks on the site. As you can appreciate giving out full tracks at the moment before release and for free is not a great idea. So I have used streaming playlist technology to allow you to play the tracks from my site through your MP3 player application such as iTunes. I have added 6 full length tracks to the listen section of the site. These are still being tweaked with later mixes added as time goes on. If you have difficulty playing the tracks please make sure you have your MP3 application open before you click the streaming link.

Midem 2006

This January saw me visit Midem in Cannes for the first time. This annual music industry get together is now in it's 40th year. I was a little un-certain about what to expect but really intended to use it as a learning experience for next year. The main aim for the trip was to make as many contacts as possible and look for possible artist management. I have to say that I found the show very daunting as it was so busy. It was pretty difficult to get meetings with the people I wanted to as I'd left the decision to go a little late. Having said that I did have some meetings and the feedback was very positive. I will let you know more details about these as and when they come to fruition. I recorded a short video diary of the week, if you would like to see it click this link

Gospel recording session

I have always thought that one of my tracks "The last time" had the potential to be a little bit different, I had been toying with the idea of having a large choir in the finale of the track, this idea developed into a Gospel choir and the seed was sown to do a recording. I managed to get a group of singers together and a studio was found, Strongroom Studios in London. It was an amazing night and you can hear the finished track on the site, if you would like to see some photos or a behind scenes video then click on the links below.

Music Update

I spent most of January in the studio writing and recording. It was a very productive time although things always take longer than you think. I have added 2 new tracks "Questions and answers" and "you're gone" to the site. As I have mentioned in the streaming article above I have added these 2 plus 4 other full length tracks to the music section of the site.
